

Phrases that you can use in an Essay, particularly in an Opinion Essay

PHRASE:

These days, there is an ongoing debate about whether X outweighs Y or vice versa. In this essay, I will delve into this topic and provide reasons for my perspective.

EXAMPLE:

These days, there is an ongoing debate about whether the taste of food outweighs its nutritional value or vice versa. In this essay, I will delve into this topic and provide reasons for my perspective.

PHRASE:

According to surveys conducted on this matter, the majority of people believe that

According to research

According to statistics,

According to the majority of scientists,

According to experts,

According to data,

PHRASE:

From my standpoint, X is more ADJ than Y. (From my standpoint, X is ADJ-er than Y.)

EXAMPLE:

From my standpoint, nutritional value is more important than the taste of food.

From my standpoint, English is easier than German.

PHRASE:

Consequently, as I have indicated above,

PHRASE:

To sum up, all I want to say is that...

PHRASE:

From how I see things,

EXAMPLE:

From how I see things, reducing pollution to slow down global warming is crucial.

PHRASE and its EXAMPLE:

From my perspective, striking a balance between economic progress and protecting the environment is paramount for a sustainable future.

More Examples:

From my perspective, the benefits of exercise are more significant than those of a sedentary lifestyle.

From my perspective, outdoor activities are more beneficial than spending extended hours indoors.

In my view, technological advancements are more advantageous than potential drawbacks.

In my view, online learning is more beneficial than traditional classroom education.

According to my beliefs, fostering creativity is more crucial than adhering strictly to rules.

According to my beliefs, encouraging independent thinking is more crucial than emphasizing conformity.

In my opinion, sustainable practices are more vital than short-term economic gains.

In my opinion, investing in renewable energy sources is more vital than relying on non-renewable resources.

From my standpoint, fostering a sense of community is more valuable than individual achievements.

From my standpoint, collaborative projects are more valuable than solo endeavors.